Ten Republicans join House Democrats; Senate trial pending

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump was impeached by the U.S. House for a historic second time Wednesday, charged with "incitement of insurrection" over the deadly mob siege of the Capitol in a swift and stunning collapse of his final days in office.

With the Capitol secured by armed National Guard troops inside and out, the House voted 232-197 to impeach Trump. The proceedings moved at lightning speed, with lawmakers voting just one week after violent pro-Trump loyalists stormed the U.S. Capitol, egged on by the president's calls for them to "fight like hell" against the election results.

Ten Republicans fled Trump, joining Democrats who said he needed to be held accountable and warned ominously of a "clear and present danger" if Congress should leave him unchecked before Democrat Joe Biden's inauguration Jan. 20.

Trump is the only U.S. president to be twice impeached. It was the most bipartisan presidential impeachment in modern times, more so than against Bill Clinton in 1998.

Okla. House members vote against impeachment

Oklahoma's five U.S. Representatives all voted against impeaching their fellow Republican, President Donald Trump, on Wednesday.

For the most part, the five said impeaching Trump a week before his term ends is pointless and would further divide the country a week after rioters aligned with Trump invaded the Capitol.

The impeachment charge essentially centers on whether they did so at Trump's behest after whipping up the crowd with discredited claims of election fraud and the notion that Congress could be pressured into keeping Trump in office.

The Oklahoma delegation's objections focused on the possibility of further inflaming Trump supporters and the rapid manner in which the single article of impeachment was brought to the House floor.

"This impeachment proceeded with zero investigations and zero hearings," Hern said in a written statement. "This hasty rush to impeach a sitting President without any investigations should alarm all of us.

More vaccine headed to Oklahoma

Future shipments will depend on how quickly it's administered

OKLAHOMA CITY — The state of Oklahoma is modifying its vaccination plan as additional doses are expected to become available, health officials said Wednesday.

"Due to a recent announcement by the Trump administration, Oklahoma is anticipating increased vaccine supply in the coming days," Deputy Health Commissioner Keith Reed said during a virtual press conference.

"Operation Warp Speed will be shipping first and second doses of the vaccination to the states. This is a departure from the procedure we were aware of as of yesterday."

The change ensures that a second dose will be available to everyone who receives the first, he said.

Both vaccines currently available in the state require two doses weeks apart.

The state vaccination plan has come under fire for a lack of time slots in which residents can obtain the doses. But Reed said slots are available based on the number of doses the state receives each week. The state is committed to increasing access points as more doses become available, he said.

So far, 1,367 providers have signed up to assist with vaccinations, Reed said.

He encouraged those providers to be prepared because the state will be engaging them very soon.
